Jordan and everyone,

Just a quick note to let you know that on June 27th we'll be welcoming our first FTM guest, writer and activist James Green, on Trans-Sister Radio (please don't read anything in from the name of our show...it refers to the fact that both Marti and I are transwomen who fight like sisters). I encourage you to join us live at 8pm eastern (Mr. Green will be on during our second hour 9-10pm). We'll be discussing a variety of topics and issues, and if you'd like to offer your questions and comments, you can join us in our chatroom while we're live.

We look forward to your participation...

Peace and Power,

Becky

"Vindictive"? "Mean-sprited"? I was never any of those things...all I did was try to promote Trans-Sister Radio on your list, and you attacked and vilified me for it, accusing me of, among other things, spamming...

Kinda ironic, isn't it?

Peace and Power,

Becky

I did have a different point of view..until you demonstrated that nothing had really changed...and if you want to get into reprinting private emails we could always include this one, even tho you apparently had no idea who you were lauding at the time:

Subject: Re: Dawn's Trans-Sister Radio Interview

Hi Monica,

The interview with Dawn Wilson was very insightful and informative. I was very impressed with both the content and the audio quality.

As a teenage, I listened to WBLI-FM radio out of New York, because it was the only radio station that provided interviews with gays, political activists, folk singers, and members of the transgendered and transsexual communities. At the time, they were considered an "underground" radio station because they played because by such unknown artists as Jimi Hendrix, The Doors, Dr. John, and Arlo Guthrie.

I've neither seen, nor heard anything like WBLI, since I moved from New York, to Augusta, Georgia, some 15 years ago. So, it was really very exciting for me to listen to the interview with Dawn Wilson.

I should add that Ms. Wilson is quite articulate and enjoyable to hear. For a very brief time, I was even able to forget that she's a Republican. I'm only teasing, of course.

Seriously, it is well worth the investment in time.

Thank you for sharing. And, I look forward to your interviews with FTMs as well.

With Love,

Roberta Angela Dee

Obvoiusly, you know how good we are...too late to take it back now....
